LARCP Distinguished Lecturer Series

Shannon Nichol

Founding Principal of Gustafson Guthrie Nichol

The Olmsted era may seem to be over, but American landscape architects have far more work to do than ever before, in carefully repairing, preserving, and repurposing existing, human-built environments.

Shannon Nichol will use both known and new project examples—such as the Lurie Garden and Seattle's Pike Pine Streets Plan—to discuss how GGN's conceptually structured, context-driven design approach has translated from grand sculptural gardens into retrofitting existing streets and clarifying historically-driven urban plans.

LUNCH & LEARN

A local representative for Forbo Flooring Systems, a manufacturer of high-quality commercial and residential floor coverings for over 150 years, will be visiting K-State on Tuesday, October 7th from 11:30-12:30 for a Lunch and Learn.

Lunch will be provided while Scott Reeder informs us of Forbo's flooring solutions.

Please RSVP no later than WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 1st to Morgan Stafford at mcstaff@k-state.edu.

PROFESSOR PETERY MAGYAR IN HUNGRY

At the invitation of the Faculty of Architecture, and the World Organization of Hungarian Architects and Engineers, Architecture Professor Dr. Peter Magyar visited Budapest from September 11-18, 2014. To further the cooperation between the Technical University of Budapest and K-State, together with K-State Vice Provost for International Programs Dr. Marcelo Sabates, they met TUB Vice Rector Dr. Akos Jobbagy, and the Dean of the Faculty of Architecture, Dr. Csaba Molnar.

Dr. Sabates also attended the opening of Professor Magyar's exhibit, where enlarged panels of some of his works were shown. Peter later gave a public lecture on the topic of the simultaneity of cognitive and emotive forces in design. He also had the opportunity to tour the soon to be completed Cultural and Sports Center, that he co-designed with former TUB Architecture Dean, Dr. Antal Lazar.

WIGFALL TO PRESENT AT 2014 NOMA

Landscape Architecture and Regional & Community Planning Associate Professor La Barbara Wigfall is presenting an interactive, digital sequel to last year's session at the 2014 NOMA Conference in Philadelphia, PA, asking the audience "Why should pop culture matter to design professionals?" on October 2-5. She will also be facilitating a student panel, entitled "Driving Change Through Design", on collaborative efforts at the organizational, university, and community level.
