Just two items. Number 1. Be there in Forum Hall next Monday for the Fran Silvestre lecture at 4.30: <http://fransilvestrearquitectos.com/>. Number 2. Cover your final projects with love to make your best work to date. Our accreditation visit is next fall and your work is vital.

And of course take time over the next several weeks to exercise, sleep and reflect on how awesome it is to be creating and making things.

Have a great week.

About the Lecture_

Buildings have a life of their own, between permanence, transformation, vulnerability and the inhabitant's appropriation. Through a series of recent works, we intend to debate some issues related to the contemporary practice of architecture, namely the different means architecture holds to build different spatial sensations that go beyond the first impact that its image may cause, but improve people's lives and endure in time. These ideas were carefully developed in the selected works located in contexts where a careful balance between time, heritage and invention was urgent. From intimacy to the public space, architecture tries to find its own temporality.
