Breaking Ground on the Future of APDesign

Special Thanks from Dean de Noble

Thank you to everyone for your part in an incredibly strong showing at the Groundbreaking on Friday. President Schulz commented that he was overwhelmed by the attendance and support, both great indicators of the passion we have for this place! On top of that it was a fun event. It is clear that the energy of the ceremony has also led to increased interest and commitment in private support for our project!

I hope everyone was energized by the comments made by all the speakers and if you have an opportunity, convey your thanks, especially to Representative Mark Hutton for his efforts in keeping our project on the front burner in the legislative process. While I realize we have much to do, first and foremost connectivity and shop facilities at APDesign West, we have a trajectory of momentum that will help

Ceremony kicks off Seaton Hall renovation

K-State broke ground Friday on a project that will give its architecture program [sic] a home befitting its reputation.

Seaton Hall, home to the university's College of Architecture, Planning and Design, will undergo a $75 million renovation and expansion that will preserve elements of some of the oldest buildings on campus while creating a bigger, more modern facility.

President Kirk Schulz, Lt. Gov. Jeff Colyer, and other university and government officials were on hand Friday morning for the project's ceremonial groundbreaking.

Schulz said that within the university, he sometimes hears department leaders say that if they had new facilities, their department could be a top-10 program.

"This was one of those unique experiences where we had top-10 programs, but we did not have the facilities to get us where we need to go," he said.

Tim de Noble, the college's dean, said when he interviewed at K-State in 2009, Schulz told him that if he was hired, de Noble would have to do something with Seaton Hall, a maze-like building constructed in 1908 that had already seen a number of additions.

But de Noble said that during the interview process, he was so busy he didn't get to see most of the building. When he was hired and finally saw the whole thing, he thought, "Oh my god, what have I agreed to?"

"I didn't know then that six years later we'd address that," he said.

The renovation and expansion calls for adding 194,000 square feet of space, which will include new design and production labs, an outdoor teaching amphitheater, gallery space, a new commons area and collaborative spaces, according to a report from the university.

The building also will feature energy-efficient design to reduce maintenance and operating costs.

The renovation is funded with $60 million in state bonds and $15 million in private gifts and student fees.

ATA Shuttle Departures

REMINDER:

Below are are updated departure schedules, one for APD West and one for Bosco Plaza. Click below for schedules.

2. Bosco Plaza to APD West

How do you use them? Open the document from the location you are departing. Find the day and the time. That is when the shuttle should be departing. It is important to note that all times are approximations and subject to traffic flow, weather, etc.

Is the shuttle time off? Please contact our friends at aTa Bus [785.537.6345 or 1.877.551.6345]. They want to be sure that our routes are running as smoothly as possible.

Alumnus Ray Willis creates scholarship fund to aid minority graduate students in planning

A new scholarship fund endowed by a Kansas State University alumnus will provide financial assistance to minority graduate students in regional and community planning, a program of the landscape architecture and regional & community planning department in the College of Architecture, Planning & Design, or APDesign.

The Ray Willis Regional and Community Planning Scholarship Fund, endowed by Ray Willis, is the regional and community planning program's RCP first endowed scholarship fund in its 50-year history. It will support African-American, Native American and Hispanic graduate students. MORE
