IAPD student Allie Scripsick discusses a design concept with J.C. Harmon School students.

"Re-imagining" schools continues with workshop

Interior Architecture & Product Design 5th year graduate students conducted a workshop for the J. C. Harmon school students on Friday, Oct. 6. They started the workshop with presentations on their research of other countries, how they educate their children, and the diverse educational theories, methods and approaches they take to achieve their educational goals. The students then presented their site analysis results for J. C. Harmon School and talked about the renovation challenges and opportunities.

Following presentations, the IAPD and J. C. Harmon students worked in 12 small groups to design furniture or a product for the J. C. Harmon School.

The idea of this workshop was to introduce J. C. Harmon students to a systematic design process so they can understand how designers develop new furniture and products. At the end of the workshop, each team presented their furniture or product design.

23 IAPD students and 36 J. C. Harmon 10th grade students participated in the workshop. Professor Vibhavari Jani and Katherine Hoke hosted the workshop. Both faculty members are collaborating with KCKPS school district, DLR Group, and their 5th year IAPD graduate students this semester to "re-imagine" high schools for the 21st century.

IAPD STUDENT'S TEAM WINS IIDA DESIGN WARS

Chelsea Bainbridge an IAPD 5th year student, along with a team of two students from other universities, participated and won the IIDA Design Wars 5th Annual Student Design Charette on October 6. The day started with a site visit of a space that could act as a precedent for the project followed by a tour of the newly renovated Kansas City Crossroads building where a coffee shop and bakery will be located. Bainbridge and other Design Wars participants then assembled into teams made up of different schools and grade levels and began a three hour design charette. The teams then presented before a panel of professionals who judged the competition based on the provided design brief and project requirements.

More about the challenge: The group's client was HUDSON, a co-working café enterprise that is looking to expand into the Kansas City metro area. The design challenge included the blending of the co-working and café experience to create an exciting and inspiring place to meet, work, re-energize and thrive. Their design needed to embody the principles HUDSON was founded on with every detail of the architecture reflecting the company's unique ideals and creative mission.*

On Thursday morning, October 19, 8:30 AM to 10:00 AM, Hale has scheduled a photoshoot in Weigel for the K-State Libraries' magazine. A minimum of ten students are needed for this photoshoot. The best scenario would be to have students from all four College of APDesign disciplines represented.

The students participating "should wear what they would normally wear to class, but obviously they should look nice (i.e. no sweatpants). Solids are better than patterns and red is not a good choice. They should also bring their backpacks with school items like books, notepads, laptops, etc."

If you want to represent APDesign and Weigel Library in the K-State Libraries' magazine, please contact Maxine (532-5978, mlganske@ksu.edu, 0081 Regnier Hall) prior to 5:00 PM Tuesday, October 17. Thanks for helping.
